

Abstract

A device for palletizing objects is described, containing a buffer device and a conveyor zone on which are provided a transposing device for assembling a layer and a pallet loader. To equip the device with effective buffering in a simple design, it has been proposed that the conveyor zone and the buffer could optionally be loaded by the transposing device and optionally unloaded by the pallet loader.